Teaching
through working

The CTED program is designed to teach students with disabilities vocational skills.

Myself and the teaching assistant both have personnel work experience in the Hospitality industry.

Students are not paid for their work, our goal as educators is to get our students ready for employment,

Students are expected to follow the companies rules and regulations. They are graded on their ability to complete the tasks they are given. By the end of the first year students should be able to and or have their food handlers certification.
